Definition

Socio Economic Indexes for Areas (SEIFA) is a suite of indexes that have been created by the Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS) from social and economic Census information. Each index ranks geographic areas across Australia in terms of their relative socio-economic advantage and disadvantage.

This report presents information from the Index of Relative Socio-economic Disadvantage (IRSD), a general socio-economic index that summarises a range of information about the economic and social conditions of people and households within an area.

This index includes only measures of relative disadvantage.

A low score indicates relatively greater disadvantage in general. For example, an area could have a low score if there are (among other things):

- many households with low income, many people with no qualifications, or many people in low skill occupations.

A high score indicates a relative lack of disadvantage in general. For example, an area may have a high score if there are (among other things):

- few households with low incomes, few people with no qualifications, and few people in low skilled occupations.

FEEDBACK FROM THE COMMUNITY

In 2025 a community survey was undertaken in order to gain insight into the issues facing community members.

A total of 41 residents responded to the survey.

Those that responded indicated that the attributes that they most enjoyed about living in the Narromine region was the sense of community, the open space, being close to Dubbo but in their own smaller community and being close to family.

Most respondents felt they had a good to excellent quality of life although 17% of respondents nominated a poor or fair quality of life.

Of community members that responded to the survey 68% indicated that they were satisfied or very satisfied with the facilities in the community.

Several responses were received to the question:

“What actions or initiatives would help create a more connected and inclusive community in the Narromine region?” These included:

More open mindedness to change, more acceptance of those not born here

Continued community events

Activities for over 50's and empty nesters, sports events, fishing activities

Feedback received as a result of the community survey has been incorporated into the action list.

The biggest social challenges facing the Narromine region are:

1. Access to health services
2. Safety and crime prevention
3. Employment opportunities
4. Access to education/ training
5. Affordable housing
6. Youth engagement and activities
7. Support for seniors
8. Inclusion and accessibility

2. Childcare and early learning
3. Youth services and programs

FEEDBACK FROM THE COMMUNITY

Interviews were also conducted with several key providers within the young educator and health sector.

A number of recurring issues were raised and are detailed below.

-Each of the services consulted were planning for future growth and already experiencing service pressures from the existing population.

-Each of the services nominated community transport/ local public transport as an issue for those accessing services.

-Services recognised that there were community members experiencing low socio-economic disadvantage, along with poor health and economic outcomes, who required a higher level of support.

-Greater access to allied health and other preventative health services would deliver significant benefits to the Narromine community.

Interviews have also recently been conducted with the Trangie and Narromine Local Aboriginal Lands Council's. Together with Narromine Shire Council a Memorandum of Understanding has been signed to ensure each organisation is working to achieve their common goals and enhance the working relationship.
